Department Valedictorians

---

Isabel Marie Emery, Anthropology Department

Isabel Emery is graduating with an emphasis in cultural and linguistic anthropology and a minor in international development. Her love for global populations started in high school when she memorized all the countries on a world map. While at Brigham Young University, Emery was able to complete an internship with a nongovernmental organization in Malawi, where she evaluated a program that taught business techniques to locals. She completed her anthropology field school research at the Provo Farmers Market and wrote an undergraduate thesis on her findings. Emery is looking forward to continuing her education this fall as she begins a master's degree in public health. She hopes to conduct program evaluations in clinical settings to improve the individual patient experience in healthcare. Emery grew up in Riverton, Utah, and is the daughter of Russell and Jennifer Emery. She would like to thank the professors she had the privilege of working with during her time at BYU. She also wants to thank her family and friends for their constant encouragement.

Hannah Evaline Dahl, Economics Department

Hannah Dahl is graduating with a double major in economics and mathematics. Early in her time at Brigham Young University, she fell in love with how economics uses both math and data to answer questions about the world. She has worked as a teaching assistant and has taken an active part in the Economics Student Association and Women in Economics subgroup. As a research assistant, Dahl examined the impact of a low-income housing subsidization program on crime rates; she also studied accurate measurement of employer mobility in the US economy. She is grateful for wonderful mentorship and support from her professors and for the opportunities she has had to grow and develop while at BYU. Dahl grew up in Provo, Utah, and served in the Uruguay Montevideo West Mission. She is excited to continue learning this fall as she begins a PhD in economics.

Anna Denise Lemke, School of Family Life

After serving a mission to New Jersey and the island of Guadeloupe during COVID-19, Anna Lemke returned to Brigham Young University and unexpectedly discovered the human development major. It offered a rich blend of courses in psychology, health, and development; she decided to jump in. Little did she know just how life-changing the major would be, revealing her passion for mental and emotional health, healthy relationships, and human flourishing. After taking a gap year, Lemke plans to pursue a master's degree in social work or occupational therapy. Her highlights at BYU include volunteering with BYU EMS, participating in a study abroad program in Europe, working as a peer mentor for first-year students, and getting as much free food on campus as possible. She was born and raised in Los Alamos, New Mexico, and her parents are Terrill and Amy Lemke. As the third of four children, she considers her siblings some of her best friends. She'd like to thank her family, professors, mentors, friends, roommates who've become like family, and—most of all—her Savior Jesus Christ.

Nicolas Ethan Harris, Geography Department

Ethan Harris is a geography major with a global studies emphasis and a secondary major in Portuguese studies. After serving a mission in Brasília, Brazil, he realized that his interest in diverse landscapes and cultures would fit perfectly with the geography program at Brigham Young University. Harris has worked as a teaching and research assistant for professors of geography, Portuguese, and plant and wildlife sciences—representing disciplines across three colleges. He has especially enjoyed participating in Geography Department field trips, study abroad experiences, and activities hosted by the Geography Student Association, where he served as co-president. He enjoys hiking, exploring new places, and playing the piano and violin. Following graduation, Harris plans to pursue a master's degree in Luso-Brazilian literatures at BYU and a career managing public lands. He is the oldest of four children born to Sam and Nichole Harris and grew up in the small farming town of Connell, Washington. He would like to thank his family, professors, and amazing friends at BYU for their incredible support and encouragement.

Erik Philip Palmer, History Department

Erik Palmer is a history major with a minor in ancient Near Eastern studies, Hebrew Bible emphasis. Following his mission to Belgium and the Netherlands, Palmer was inspired by great mentors at BYU to pursue a career as a professor. He worked as a research and teaching assistant for Donald W. Parry for two years, editing a new Hebrew textbook and other projects while teaching Biblical Hebrew. He also worked with his mentor, Joshua M. Matson, on Dead Sea Scrolls projects and textual studies. Palmer finds his greatest fulfillment in teaching and service; he received the 2025 Top Accessibility Volunteer award at BYU, served as a bishopric counselor for three years, and has been involved in interfaith work and leadership in his field. Palmer is most grateful for the example of his mother, Donna, who passed away in December; she and the Savior remain his most formative teachers and have shown him that true success is found in loving God and serving others. This fall, Palmer will begin a master's program at Harvard Divinity School.

Dallin Holt Bundy, Political Science Department

Dallin Bundy grew up in St. George, Utah, as the youngest of three children and served a mission in Las Vegas, Nevada, and in Ecuador. Throughout his undergraduate career as a political science major with an emphasis in international strategy and diplomacy, he worked to promote civic engagement. He has been recognized for his commitment to public service by being named a BYU Wheatley Scholar and a 2025 Truman Scholar. He served as co-president of the Political Affairs Society, president of College Republicans, and vice president of activities in the BYU Student Association. Bundy studied abroad in Europe, worked on numerous political campaigns, and completed internships in Washington, DC, and in the Office of the Governor in Utah. He conducted research on polarization and congressional redistricting as a student fellow with the BYU Center for the Study of Elections and Democracy. Bundy will be continuing his studies this fall at BYU Law School. He is incredibly grateful for his parents, Casey and Mikell Bundy, who taught him the importance of education and hard work, and for the amazing students, faculty, and staff at BYU who have instilled within him the "Spirit of the Y."

Evelyn Lee Thrasher, Psychology Department

Evelyn Thrasher grew up in Prosper, Texas, and came to Brigham Young University with boundless curiosity. After serving a proselyting mission in Eugene, Oregon, and Rosario, Argentina, she returned to campus and built an undergraduate career spanning psychology, Spanish studies, and international development—a major, a secondary major, and a minor. She conducted research alongside beloved mentors Jenae Nelson in the Development of Character and Spirituality Lab and Melissa Jones in the Psychotherapy

Process and Outcome Research Lab, contributed to the development of a new BYU sports camp for youth, presented an award-winning poster at the Mary Lou Fulton Mentored Student Research Conference, and demonstrated the efficacy of self-guided therapy workbooks. Outside the classroom, Thrasher volunteered at the Utah State Hospital, taught at the Missionary Training Center, hiked in countries around the world, and served faithfully in church callings. She is now pursuing a career in chaplaincy and will attend divinity school this fall. She is endlessly grateful to her parents, her brother, and the mentors she has found through school, work, and church. She is who she is because they always cheered her on.

Alexandra Kristine Williams, Sociology Department

Before her second year at Brigham Young University, Alexandra Williams served a mission in Belgium and the Netherlands. She then returned to BYU to earn a degree in sociology. She has worked as a teaching assistant for both international development and data analysis courses. Williams has also been involved in research surrounding adolescent and young adult outcomes of adverse childhood experiences and child maltreatment. She’s passionate about research and about working with individuals. While interning with the State of Utah’s Division of Child and Family Services during her junior year, Williams decided that she wanted a career as a social worker. She is excited to pursue a master of social work beginning this fall. Williams is the daughter of David and Stacie Williams and grew up in Fullerton, California. She is grateful to her mentors at BYU and to her family for their support and encouragement.
